
Lifeline Theatre Hosts Chicago Mystery Author Sara Paretsky
For “Gaudy Night” Post-Show Discussion & Reception on Sunday, July 9, 2006
Sponsored by The Illinois Humanities Council

Mystery writer Sara Paretsky’s renowned chronicles of Chicago private investigator V. I. Warshawski is the subject of nearly a dozen novels and one feature film starring Kathleen Turner. People Magazine called Warsawski “a kind of female Sam Spade - gritty, passionate, able to take care herself. But she is also subject to the doubts and insecurities of the average woman.”

When Paretsky introduced Warshawski in Indemnity Only in 1982, she revolutionized the mystery world. By creating a female investigator who uses her wits as well as her fists, Paretsky challenged a genre in which women traditionally were either vamps or victims. Hailed both by critics and readers, Indemnity Only was followed by 11 more best-selling Warshawski novels. The Los Angeles Times says, “Paretsky is unique among the women writing about women,” while Publishers Weekly claims, “Among today’s P.I.’s, nobody comes close to Warshawski.” Blacklist won the Gold Dagger from the British Crime Writers for best novel of 2004. Paretsky’s most recent work, her thirteenth novel, is Fire Sale, published in 2005.

Paretsky’s deep-rooted concern for social justice, the hallmark of her novels, has carried her voice beyond the world of crime fiction. As a frequent contributor to the New York Times and The Guardian, and a speaker at such places as the Library of Congress and Oxford University, she is an impassioned advocate for those on society’s margins.

Not only has Paretsky broken barriers with her own work, she has also helped open doors for other women. Her role in founding Sisters in Crime, an advocacy group for women writers, caused Ms. Magazine to name her Woman of the Year in 1988. In 2002, the British Crime Writers Association awarded her the Cartier Diamond Dagger for lifetime achievement. Paretsky’s work is celebrated in Pamela Beere Briggs’s documentary, Women of Mystery.

To give back to the community, Paretsky established the Sara and Two C-Dogs Foundation, which primarily supports girls and women in the arts, letters, and sciences. She has endowed several scholarships at the University of Kansas, and has mentored students in Chicago’s inner city schools. She serves on the advisory boards of Literature for All of Us, a literacy group for teen moms, and Thresholds, which serves Chicago’s mentally-ill homeless.

Paretsky grew up in eastern Kansas. She and her brothers attended a two-room country school, which gave Paretsky her lifelong love of baseball and under-dogs: she played third base for a school that always finished at the bottom of its rural league. Her first published writing, a story about living through a tornado, appeared in the American Girl magazine when she was 11. In 1966, Paretsky came to Chicago to do community service in the neighborhood where Martin Luther King was organizing. Staying on to make Chicago her home, she received a PhD in history and an MBA from the University of Chicago. She lives in the city with her husband, a physics professor at the University of Chicago, their wonder dog Callie, and near their adored granddaughter.

WHAT: Lifeline Theatre concludes its 23rd anniversary MainStage season by presenting the world premiere adaptation of GAUDY NIGHT by Dorothy L. Sayers, adapted by Lifeline ensemble member Frances Limoncelli and directed by Lifeline Artistic Director Dorothy Milne (GAUDY NIGHT is the third Sayers mystery this team has brought to the Lifeline stage).
Harriet Vane tries to escape the complications of her relationship with Lord Peter Wimsey by returning to her Oxford roots. Her peaceful retreat becomes a nightmare as a vandal with a grudge threatens the college, its residents and finally, Harriet's life. And where is Lord Peter now that she really needs him? Lifeline ensemble members Peter Greenberg and Jenifer Tyler return to their roles to continue the romance between aristocratic sleuth Wimsey and the independent-minded Vane.
Lifeline produced Sayers' WHOSE BODY? in 2002 and STRONG POISON in 2004; the latter winning a Jeff Citation for Best Adaptation and After Dark Awards for Peter Greenberg's portrayal of Lord Peter Wimsey and Tom Birch's scenic design. The show runs approximately two and a half hours with one intermission.
